TALK ABOUT NEIGHBORS.

Meeting of Gossiping Women Called by Utica Pastor.

Utica, N. Y., Jan. 31—Gossiping women—100 of 'em—held their first weekly meeting in the Rev. Henry McIlvray's tabernacle at Little Falls to talk about their neighbors.

It was a breezy session, a regular scorcher, and 1,000 pairs of ears in the towns of "Mohawk valley" are burning fiercely to-day.

Although the women came from the meeting greatly relieved, they said they had been told not to say who had been talked about or what scandals had been uncovered. The Rev. Mr. McIlvray was equally relient.

"Women will talk about their neighbors, you know," explained the Rev. Mr. Ilvray, "and I have hit upon the plan to give them an opportunity to talk to their heart's content where it will do no harm. The meeting was a secret one, and its secrets will be kept. It was a complete success."

But the Rev. Mr. McIlvray's knowledge of human nature, especially of feminine human nature, is not exactly perfect. While he professed to know that women must talk about their neighbors, he appeared to forget that other old principle about a secret and its keeping. So it was learned later that scandal had the first place on the long list of topics for the gossipers. Married men running about with other women and wives doing the same thing with other than their own was one of the principal topics of gossip. Troubles with choir singers, school teachers, church worshippers and the like came in for a good share of big buzzing.

The Rev. Mr. McIlvray first gained fame hereabouts by acting as spiritual adviser to Chester Gillette, now in prison for the murder of "Billy" Brown.
